He slipped into an ice-cream saloon very softly, and when the girl asked him what he wanted he replied :

"Corn-beef, fried potatoes, pickles, and mince-pie." "This is not a restaurant; this is an ice-cream parlor," she said. "Then why did you ask me what I wanted for? Wby didn't you bring on your ice-cream?" She went after it, and as she returned he continued:

"You see, my dear girl, you must infer you must reason. It isn't likely that I would come into an ice-cream parlor to buy a grindstone, is it? You did not think I came in here to ask if you had any baled hay, did Zon ;" She looked at him in great surprise, and came in I would infer that you came for something in my line. I wouldn't step out and ask you if you wanted to buy a mule, would I?" She went away highly indignant. An old lady was devouring a dish of cream at the next table, and the stranger, after watching her for a moment, called out: "My dear woman, have you found any bairs or buttons in your disb?"

"Mercy! no!" she exclaimed, as wheeled around and dropped ber spoon. "Well, I'm glad of it," he continued, "If you find any just let me know."

She looked at him for half a minute, picked up the spoon, laid it down again, and then rose up and left the room. She must have said something to the proprietor, for he came rupping in and exclaimed: "Did you tell that woman there were hairs and buttons in my ice-cream?"

" No, sir." " You didn't ?"

he went on:

"No, sir, I did not; I merely requested her, in case she found any such ingredients, to inform me!" "Well, sir, that was a mean trick."

"My dear sir," said the stranger, smiling softly, "did you expect me to ask the woman if she had found a crow-bar or a sledge-hammer in her cream? It is impossible, sir, for such articles to be hidden away in such small dishes."

The proprietor went away growling, and as the stranger quietly supped away at his cream two young ladies came in, sat down near him, and ordered creum and cakes. He waited until they had eaten a little, and then "Beg pardon, ladies, but do you observe

Max Ageler has the following:

Over in W. one of the churcues recently called a clergyman named Rev. Joseph Striker. In that city, by a most unfortunate coincidence, there also resides a prominent prize fighter named Joseph Striker. and rumors were affoat a few weeks ago that the latter Joseph was about to engage in a contest with a Jersey pugilist for the championship. Our sheriff considered it his duty to warn Joseph against the proposed infraction of the laws, and so he determined to call upon the professor of the art of selfdetence. Unhappily, in inquiring the way to the pugilist's house, somebody misunderstood the sheriff, and sent bim to the residence of the Rev. Joseph Striker, of whom he had never heard. When Mr. Striker entered the room in answer to the summons, the sheriff said to him, familiarly: "Hello, Joe! How are you?"

Mr. Striker was amazed at this address, GENTLEMEN'S but he politely said:

"Good morning." "Joe," said the sheriff, throwing his leg lazily over the arm of the chair, "I came round here to see you about that mill with Patsy Dingus that they're all talking about. I want you to understand that it can't come on hand and made to order at low prices, and waroff anywhere's around here. You know well enough it's against the law, and I ain't

"Now, see here, Joe," said the sheriff, biting off a piece of tobacco, and looking very wise, "that won't go down with me. It's pretty thin, you know. I know well enough that you've put up $1,000 on that little affair, and that you've got the whole thing fixed with Bill Martin for referee. I know you're going down to Pea Patch Island to made goods are sold. heve it out, and I'm not going to allow it. I'd arrest you as sure as a gun if you try it on, now mind me."

"Really, sir," said Mr. Striker, "there ENGLISH CREAM-LAID PAPER AND nust be some mistake about —" must be some mistake about --- " "Oh, no, there isn't; your name's Joe Striker, isn't it?" asked the sheriff.

" My name is Joseph Striker, certainly." "I knew it," said the sheriff, spitting on the carpet, "and you see Pve got this thing dead to rights. It shan't come off, and I'm doing you a favor in blocking the game, because Patsey'd curl you all up and sicken you anyway it I let you meet him. I know he's the best man, and you'd just lose your money and get all bunged up besides; so you take my advice, now, and quit. You'll be sorry, if you don't."

HE READ THE PAPERS .- [From the Indian apolis Sun.] - Farmer Jones took his weekly paper for political refreshment, for family reading, and for general intelligence. He read therein a great many slips how to conduct his farming pursuits, and followed them out with more zeal than success. Domestic recipes were found, and all kinds of unheardof and unpulatable dishes resulted. Health regulations, etc., were read and practised with faith and patience truly remarkable. One evering be read the following, that has presed the press rounds, within a few weeks. and reading, he believed:

"If you cut the back legs of your chairs two inches shorter than the front ones, the fatigue of sitting will be greatly relieved and the spine placed in better position." Now, be lad often felt weary with prolonged sitting, and indeed, though he hadn't (bought of it before, he now felt convinced that his spine did not feel just right. So he directed John to bring the saw at once, and the chair anything peculiar in the taste of this cream?" was soon made "two inches shorter" behind. Beaming with satisfaction he sat down again, took up kis paper, and commenced reading. The experiment was a success; he felt much more comfortable; he was sure that his spine would soon be sound, and that the editor was a wonderfully "See here, what in bluzes are you talking about?" he demanded.
